KENTUCKY WEATHER REPORT.

What We May Expect Between This Time and To-morrow Evening.

U. S. WEATHER BUREAU,
WASHINGTON, D. C., April 22, 1892.
Special to THE PUBLIC LEDGER.

Fair till Saturday night.

The above forecasts are made for a period of thirty-six hours, ending at 8 o'clock to-morrow evening.

THE FIRST BASE HIT.

The man at the bat stood up,
For he had been waiting ripe;
And he sighted the ball, the pitcher sent in
And he hit it a terrible swipe.

And the ball went whizzing down,
The crowd gasped and whistled,
And it bored its way through the shortstop's
And knock'd him flat on his back.

And the crowd set up a howl,
And the players set up a shout,
And the pretty girl on the grand stand asked:
Does that beat the un-pure out?

PERSONAL MENTION.

James Evans is home from Athens, O. W. D. Hocker of New York is in the city visiting relatives.

Miss Ida B. Edmonds returned last evening from Cincinnati.

David Faulkner and Robert Dudley of Flemingsburg were in Maysville yesterday.

Mrs. R. B. Griffith of Indianapolis is the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. I. Lane.

William Hicks of Cincinnati is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Hicks, forest avenue.

The Grand Jury reported four indictments yesterday.

MARY JOHNSON, a citizen of Millersburg, has been apprehended by the revenue agents for dispensing liquors without Uncle Sam's permission.

MICHAEL'S Orchestra of Covington, enroute to E. O., to play at aستانtaining night before last, was caught by the landslide near Augustia, much to the disappointment of the up-river folks.

C. H. DYE closed from Dayton, O., with Miss Jessie Staniland, and the couple married in Covington. Miss Staniland is the third daughter of Thomas Staniland, who put up the Soldiers Monument in our cemetery. Mr. Dye is a prominent and well-to-do young Daytonian.

The woods are full of 'em. Now comes another list of aspirants for the Senatorial seat soon to be vacated by Senator Poyntz. Among those mentioned are Hon. A. P. Gooding, Judge Emery Whiting, and Hon. G. S. Hall of Mason; Hon. T. B. Harrison, R. D. Wilson and Judge Garfield of Lewis.

We see many queer names for horses, but the latest to apply for fame as a monstrosity is that of a wild Westerner, which goes by the title of "He's a Seed." Having a record of 2:17½, he is bound to be admitted to the books for registration with this wonderful appellation hanging to him. Two other names that will attract attention are "That's What" and "Wooloomooloo."

Under the Revision Commission bill, which will no doubt be adopted by the General Assembly, the Railroad Commissioners, in addition to assessing railroads, will have to assess banks, turnpikes and distilleries during which John McAllister shot and killed John Roomey, whereupon a brother of Roomey shot McAllister in the back, and seriously wounded him. Then, in order to get in fashion, Peter McAllister shot two negroes who were trying to help Roomey. One was shot in the arm, the other in the back. Neither will die.

THE COUNTY'S PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

County Superintendent Blatterman Has Prepared Some Search Questions.

Judge Morton Makes a Few Allusions to Moore's Style of Journalism.

In order to direct what is termed written work among our District Schools into a channel that would be of some use and lead to some practical good, I prepared several series of questions all within the scope of the school studies, but not necessarily to be answered from their textbooks, but requiring possibly more extensive research. I had a two-fold object in view.

First—To arouse and to stimulate a spirit of inquiry and investigation in the scholars.

Second—To furnish me a test of their acquirement and progress.

Answers to these questions are required in writing from the scholars; each paper to be signed with the name and age, and accompanied by a written statement that the work was their own and that they had not received personal aid from any quarter. These conditions being fulfilled, the papers are mailed to address of Superintendent.

The responses have not been as numerous as expected, but more may yet arrive. I proposed to make a roll of honor composed of those who answered my questions, and in order to do this I have made three grades.

First Grade—Those who have answered not less than ninety per cent.

Second Grade—Those who have answered not less than eighty-five per cent.

Third Grade—Those who have answered not less than seventy-five per cent.

The following schools have sent answers in proper form:

Mount Gilead—District No. 22.

First Grade—Nellie Stone, Lydia May Bradley.

Second Grade—Minnie Stone.

Camp Springs—District No. 45.

First Grade—Annie Yancey, Mary Yaney.

Second Grade—Lizzie Yancey, Mary Yaney.

First Grade—Pearl Fletcher, Anna Stubblefield.

Second Grade—James Taylor, Arthur Pollitt.

Springdale—District No. 37.

First Grade—Clara George, Luella Vawter, Stockton B. Tully, F. C. Brock.

Second Grade—Charles Vawter, Sudie Trumbull.

West Liberty—District No. 12.

First Grade—Punkie Robertson, Charles Talley, Vina Collins.

Third Grade—Frank Sparks.

Dover—District No. 2.

First Grade—Earshanay McMillan, Anna F. Boyd, Clara D. Hanna, Maggie Metz, Hannah Howard.

Second Grade—Elgin Anderson.

Third Grade—B. E. Hanna, Walter Wilson, Flora Howard.

These papers have been carefully and strictly examined, and I will add, show in general, excellent scholarship.

I expect to keep up this exercise, although it is attended by much labor, as I have to prepare the questions myself, but I anticipate good results and a wide-spread interest. As soon as other papers are sent in they shall be examined and results made known.

FOR CHEAPER SCHOOLBOOKS.

The Parents of Kentucky Will Hereafter Get Them at Less Price.

A Frankfort special says the school-book combine got a knock-out blow in the Senate, and a grievous burden may be lifted from the parents of the four hundred thousand children who attend the Public Schools in Kentucky.

As the law now stands and has been for some years, the education of the people is valued in the common Schools in this state is valued in the State Board of Education, and the Board is required once in each five years to make such a selected list. No other books are permitted to be used in any Public School than those selected. The State Board of Education consists of the Superintendent of Public Instruction, the Attorney General, the Secretary of State and two members appointed by the Superintendent—in five in all. Practically three being a majority of the Board, it left the entire selection of text-books in the hands of one man—the Superintendent.

It has been estimated that in addition to the 400,000 children who attend the Public Schools, at least 100,000 attend private schools. Now, all the selected official text-books in the Public Schools gives these same books a bonus in private schools, so there are probably 500,000 children in the state affected by the choice of the State Board. At one dollar a year for each child—a low estimate—this would amount to $500,000, or $25,000 for five years.

Seven out of ten of the books now recommended and in use in Kentucky are those of the American Book Company, a consolidation of publishing houses. The primary book—those of which the greater number are sold—are almost exclusively, or quite exclusively, the books of that concern.

The book is justified by the present law, has been charging $1.00 for book it would sell at twenty-five per cent discount in other states. It recently came forward with a proposition to make a 16 per cent discount, provided the present monopoly of five years were continued.

The bill as amended and passed leaves the control still with the State Board, as it should be, but instead of one selected text-book of each grade on each subject, it requires the selection of three, published by separate houses, in the way affiliated or connected; it knocks in the head the old five-year selection, and requires a new one, putting in three works in each branch by the 1st of next September, and finally requires each publisher to give to the people of Kentucky the highest rate of discount available.

ASHLAND is a growing town. According to THE NEWS the population in 1880 was $3,800, and—we presume the Editor means by this the value of the property—was $1,000,000. We are told that the property recovered against him about $1,000,000.

HICO, the little son of Julius Lacey, a well-known traveling man, was crushed to death in Louisville. He was playing in an empty storeroom when there were large crowds. The theory is that while trying to climb up a counter he fell and was turned over on him. The counter was removed from his body, and he was found to be almost extinct. His chest was caved in. The face was also mutilated.

J. LELAND NICHOLS and J. Phister were in a pair of handcuffs at Drummie's, a few days ago, trying to burn the Flat Creek in Bath county. It was too high; but they were not to be thwarted; they organized a ferry company with shares of $15 each, dismantled their buggy, loaded it into a boat and crossed safely. They forced the horse to swim across by stoning him. The Maysville man generally gets the blame.

THE OLDEST SUITCASE.

Money That Has Been in Litigation Almost a Century.

The "olddest living suitcase" received a longer lease of life from the supreme court, say the Philadelphia Record. The record states: "March term, 1814, number eighty-two," so that in two months it will be able to celebrate its seventy-eighth birthday, with every prospect of living to the ripe age of fourscore. Two full sets of heirs, a trust company, four lawyers, an auditor and a deputy escatator are seeing that it wants very short duration. Ten minutes with each hand ought to amply suffice.

Two sets of claimants, one hailing from Chester County in this state and claiming to be grandchildren of James Moore's brother, and the other from Moore's wife, Nancy, whose descendants were sprung up. The auditor awarded the fund to George W. Pepper as counsel for the Pennsylvania heirs. Exceptions to this decision have been filed on behalf of both the Commonwealth and the Maryland heirs, and the supreme court has directed that the case be remanded to be argued upon the list for arguments during the present term.

One of our young lawyers made his first address to a jury yesterday.

WHY can't Maysville organize a baseball club and join the Bluegrass League? There is some good talent lying dormant here and we have any amount of enthusiasm to boom the club. We rank "way up" in Kentucky baseball circles.

FRANK McCLEANAHAN, this morning, moved from the roof of Delmonte Daulton's new house in the Fifth Ward. He was engaged in putting on the tin roof and, slipping, fell two stories, into the cellar, a distance of thirty feet. He was painfully but not seriously injured, having received a few ugly cuts on the head, and several bruises about the body. The cellar into which he fell contained several inches of water, and Mr. McCleanahen, being stunned, would probably have drowned but for timely assistance. He walked home after the accident and has already returned to work. We congratulate the gentleman on his narrow escape.

USE OF THE HANDS.

When Writing Nearly Every Muscle in the Body Helps Them.

The late international congress of hygiene and demography, in section 4, which was concerned with the hygiene of infancy and school life, a resolution was passed in favor of the adoption of a code of rules for the use of the hands in the ground of spinal curvature and short sight are caused by the faulty position of the youthful student, which is necessitated by slope of the letters. We can learn to write in the upright position, learning to write, and the mental and physical tool which the making of our first pothooks and hangers involved. The number of muscles put in action when a person is writing is prodigious, and it is probable that in beginners every muscle of the body must be present before the graphic symbol is struck from the pen.

The fingers, wrist, elbow and shoulder must all be held steady, says the London Lancet. The spine must be rigid and fixed before it will be strong. The palm must be firm and, to this end the child often gets a support by its feet from the legs of the chair. The thorax is more or less rigid, and its movements are determined by the weight of the head, which is supported by the neck. Lastly, the kink brows and protruding tongue are unconscious muscular acts which serve to mark the effort, both of body and mind, which the child undergoes when learning to write. It is curious to note how the individuality comes into its spirit of the pedagogue. We are taught certain rules for sitting at the desk and holding the pen, which we ultimately learn to neglect, and finally write in a fashion of our own.

The true remedy for the evils produced by learning to write seems to us to be to teach the child to use both hands and to practice alternately with either hand. Vertical writing lends itself more readily to ambidexterity than is the case with horizontal writing, so that a child who could write with equal facility with either hand, while the other was working, would be little liable to writer's cramp and similar trouble. The best way to prevent this is to make the hand sufficient steadiness, and that the hand fatigue, fag, is scarcely less than the muscle fag, it goes without saying that writing lessons should at first be of very short duration. Ten minutes with each hand ought to amply suffice.

R. G. HORR, writing in The New York Tribune, says the enemies of the Protective system, for several years past, have been making the charge that a "Protective Tariff" is being imposed by other manufacturers.

AMERICAN MILLIONAIRES

robs the people and builds up a class of lordly manufacturers who become enormously rich out of the money extorted by such a revenue system from the consumers of goods here in the United States. They have been stating, with constant reiteration, that, if it was not for this Protective system here in the United States, property would be much more evenly distributed among our people, and that millionaires and men who own colossal fortunes would be unknown in this country.

The statement is, no doubt, outrageously false, and men who establish and successfully manage the enormous manufacturing industries of the United States are not "robbers." The most of them are benefactors of the working people, and do more to furnish labor at good wages for the toiling millions of the United States than any other class of citizens. The great bulk of the money received by these men is paid out for wages, and for raw material which is produced by the labor of other citizens.

The Tribune has repeatedly stated such to be its belief during the last two years. It has frequently stated that a large majority of the large fortunes of the United States have been made in the pursuits of life which are in no way affected by a Protective Tariff.

It is a simple method of stating that the very rich men of this country have become rich by following business that is not in the slightest degree either benefited or injured by Tariff laws.

Early in 1891 The Tribune published a short list of wealthy men, taken from the columns of The World, and pointed out the fact that not one in five of them had become wealthy through the protected industries. Soon after the publication of that article The Tribune resolved to ascertain, as nearly as possible, the exact facts of this whole matter. It determined to try and secure an accurate list of the millionaires of the United States. This inquiry was begun over a year ago, and has been carefully and diligently prosecuted up to the present time. The list is nearly complete, and it is proposed in a short time to give it entire to the readers of The Tribune. The undertaking has been one of great labor and very careful investigation, and while no one can get such a list that will be absolutely correct, still enough is already ascertained to enable it to state with perfect truthfulness that many of the notions so prevalent among the people who are always talking about the rich barons and immense fortunes accumulated by so many American citizens are simply exaggerated.

It is only a few days ago that The Tribune published a letter from one of these modern advocates of calamity and distress, asking how it happened that there are 31,000 millionaires in this country. In reply to that question it was stated that a careful examination would show that there are by no means nearly so many as that number. The list which has been prepared with so much care is now nearly complete, and instead of there being 31,000 actual millionaires in the United States, there are really not 4,000, and of those 2,700 made their fortunes in business not affected by the Tariff, and the other 1,200 secured their fortunes in part through business which is aided by the Tariff, and many of them partly by other kinds of employment.

When this list shall be completed, it will be found that a large majority of fortunes of the rich men of this country have been made in the mining of silver and gold, in railroad transactions, in dealing in bonds and stocks, in speculations on "Change," in patent medicines, in inventions secured by patent rights, in the enormous increase in the value of real estate, by dealing in groceries and dry goods, and other merchandise, by foreign commerce and by various other occupations which depend in no way for their success upon tariff laws, except as the Tariff has conducted so largely to part through business which is aided by the Tariff, and many of them partly by other kinds of employment.

Very few of the men who have become conspicuous in the United States during the last thirty years, as jurists, in the pulpit, at the bar, in literature or in journalism, have shown any great capacity for money-making. To manage great business affairs, and to run great corporate enterprises, requires a high order of intellect. And yet, the men of lasting fame produced here, in the United States of America, have, few of them, been men of wealth. We hear very much nowadays about how many places of position and power are secured by the use of gold. Such has been, no doubt, too often the case, but as a rule such men have done little in shaping the history of this country. In a very short space of time your dinner is ready. You find the broiled ham delicious, "done to a turn;" the potatoes are fried brown and crisp, and the French toast is golden brown. The dinner is over. The broiled chicken, the coffee clear as crystal, the steak or chops—all are cooked to a nicely and perfection unequalled anywhere. In their season corn, green peas, tomatoes and beans are served. The bill of fare and I can assure the reader that an island dinner cooked and served by your carman is not by any means the least among the many attractions of this beautiful region.

OBEYING ORDERS.

A Workman Who Failed to Obey an Order of His Master.

The duke of Wellington was very stringent in respect to obeying orders. The "Iron Duke," as he was sometimes called, was never disposed to be lenient toward the slightest disobedience, and would reward the most trifling service of directions. Lord Derby, says the Youth's Companion, was entertaining the duke at one of his country mansions at a time when certain repairs and improvements were going on. Some of the workmen were to be decorated and the general hall was to be whitewashed.

In order to prevent injury to the floor, Lord Derby furnished several pairs of slippers which were placed near the door, and he directed a young man who was at work on one of the walls to order the workmen to put on a pair before crossing the passage to the room.

"If anyone fails to attend to you," he added, "you must put him out."

Soon after a party returned from hunting, and Wellington, with his споди, all dressed up, went to open the door and rushed along the hall. The young man immediately jumped off the ladder on which he was painting, and seizing Wellington by the shoulder, fairly pushed him out of the house.

In the afternoon Lord Derby summoned all the workmen to have a talk with the master, and seated himself beside the great warrior, demanded to know who had had the impudence to push the duke of Wellington out of doors.

The master, all of a tremble, came forward and said: "It is we, my lord."

"And pray," rejoined the earl, "how came you to do it?"

The man then repeated the directions given him that morning and said: "I was only obeying orders. I thought, sir."

On this Wellington turned to Lord Derby, and smiling, said a sovereign out of his purse, which he gave to the workman, saying: "You were right to obey orders."

YOU HAVE SEEN THEM! OF COURSE YOU HAVE! WE REFER TO OUR SPRING SUITS!

Were we not so exceedingly modest we would tell you of hundreds of compliments from home and abroad showered upon us, and our truly incomparable Tailor-made, Custom-like Suits. We show more styles, colors and designs than any other house in the state, and it is an acknowledged fact that good dressers come miles and miles to be fitted out by us. Scarcely a mail that we do not receive orders from distant places for sample garments. The cause is obvious. We endeavor to please our patrons; in fact we absolutely but mildly compel you to buy our goods. We know your taste, and the satisfaction you derive by coming to us and letting us make selections for you, which in every instance proves satisfactory, is the prime cause of our success in business. This season we were peculiarly fortunate in the selection of our stock. We obtained the best things from the best houses, and a glance through our stock will convince you of the justness of our claim that we have the greatest stock of Clothing in the state.

AN ISLAND DINNER.

When Life Becomes a Success and the World Looks Lovely.

The angler's sole business in life, pro tem., is to catch and play his fish and to let the fresh water air cool his body, his clothes, giving him health and appetite to go to nothing of "drink-habit"—while he pursues his sport. The actual fishing is simply the backbone of the recreation of fishing as the real joy depends on the attendant incidents, for the true fisherman has no more pleasure than in the catching and playing his fish, but equally in his surroundings and in the pleasant companionship of others who like him, are actuated by a true love of the sport. About twelve you will quickly hint that it is about time to have an island dinner, and as nature abhors a vacuum, you will find yourself seconding his proposal "by a large majority." Choosing some pretty little nook, he will run the boat on shore and, while you walk about the shore, he will start the fire. From under his seat he will produce a table and chairs and from the basket (always most liberally supplied by the hotel) he will bring forth tablecloths, napkins, knives, forks, spoons, etc. If you are of an active turn of mind you will see him set up a tent of his own, and leave him to attend to the cooking.

If you have never seen one of these men clean and prepare a fish it would be well worth your while to stroll down to the nearest water and quicken your manner in which you do it, as a writer in the American Angler. In a very short space of time your dinner is ready. You find the broiled ham delicious, "done to a turn;" the potatoes are fried brown and crisp, and the French toast is golden brown. Soon after a party returned from hunting, and Wellington, with his споди, all dressed up, went to open the door and rushed along the hall. The young man immediately jumped off the ladder on which he was painting, and seizing Wellington by the shoulder, fairly pushed him out of the house.

In the afternoon Lord Derby summoned all the workmen to have a talk with the master, and seated himself beside the great warrior, demanded to know who had had the impudence to push the duke of Wellington out of doors.

The master, all of a tremble, came forward and said: "It is we, my lord."

"And pray," rejoined the earl, "how came you to do it?"

The man then repeated the directions given him that morning and said: "I was only obeying orders. I thought, sir."

On this Wellington turned to Lord Derby, and smiling, said a sovereign out of his purse, which he gave to the workman, saying: "You were right to obey orders."

DESERTED.

Palacio's Troops Badly Beaten at Opolito.

A Panic Seizes Them and Many Desert and Join the Rebels.

The Encounter Was Brief But Fierce—The Outlook is a Bloody One for All in Venezuela—Conscription Order Issued in Puerto Cabello.

New York, April 22.—Under date Puerto Cabello, Venezuela, the Herald Thursday morning prints the following special cable news: This is a great state of excitement here that you can't imagine. The government sent its troops to attack the town on date Palacio's army made its final and futile attempt to dislodge a force of insurgents under command of Gen. Moro, who were entrenched at a spot just beyond Opolito. The rebels had been driven back and attacked the enemy and failed to drive it from its position. Discouraged over their ill success, Palacio's troops showed signs of panic, but under appeals of their leader, they rallied and again charged the fort. The encounter was brief but fierce. They were defeated all along the line, and turning, fled in every direction.

The insurgents followed in hot pursuit, and did not abandon it until the terror stricken government troops were driven from the fort. There were many dead, dying and wounded left upon the battlefield. Some of them were rebels, but the large majority were followers of Palacio. The government soldiers did not stop to carry their dead and injured from the scene of their rout, but started on to Puerto Cabello, striking the whole town with their story of complete defeat.

The news of the battle's result sprung terror throughout Puerto Cabello. It was almost immediately followed by a general conscription order. The town has some nine thousand inhabitants. Every able-bodied man has been forced into military service. No one has been allowed to escape duty. The warehouses, mole wharves, custom house, post office, and manufacturers have been visited, and every port, drydock, and ship has been searched and compelled to quit work and enlist him self in the ranks of Palacio's defenders.

The stores have all been closed, there being no one to conduct their business. The public gardens are deserted. Women keep their doors closed at night to protect their families. The government having been fully informed of the defeat of its troops, ordered detachments from all points to this town. As soon as they arrive they are sent to the front.

Every one here is expecting that Puerto Cabello will be captured at once by the revolutionaries. People are hurrying from town to places of safety, taking with them their movable property. Such of the military as have not been sent to the front are in the large garrisoned fort and barracks ready to defend the town.

A convention has just arrived from Trujillo with further details of the hard fighting on the last three days of March, between 1,000 insurgents under Gen. Arango and the government troops commanded by Gens. Castro, Gonzales, Fernandez and Mendoza.

A SILVER SALVER

Couldn't Hold Any Nominations for Blaine

New York, April 22.—A Harrisburg daily in the World says that Chris tie was in Washington in the early part of the week, and called on Mr. Blaine. Mr. Magee is asked as saying that the question Sorenson's nomination's candidacy for the presidency was brought up.

Mr. Blaine declared that if the nomination were brought to him on a silver salver he would not accept.

Mr. Blaine said: "I feel so seriously upon this question that even in the impossible event my being nominated and elected against office I would not take the office."

Eastern Patient Commits Suicide.

COLUMBUS, O., April 22.—Nicholas Fletcher, and inmate of the insane asylum here, received three months ago from Muskingum county, committed suicide in his cell. The knife used in cutting his throat was found.

The knife used in cutting his throat was only an inch and a quarter remained.

The patient in the same apartment, say Fletcher stood before a looking-glass and made one vicious slash. The blunt blade was driven with such power that the lamp and jugs were veinly severed, and he died in a few minutes.

He was 85 years old and a farmer by occupation.

The Big Hall Finished.

MINNEAPOLIS, April 22.—The convention hall has been turned over to the committee by the architect and his wife, who have completed their work. The hall was completed eighteen days from the day of commencement and the workmen were obliged to lay off two days for lack of lumber.

The executive committee has decided to close the hall from now until the convention comes.

Admission will be free to all.

High River at Cincinnati.

CINCINNATI, April 22.—The steady rain of the past few days in the Ohio Valley has caused the water to rise. It is now generally about one-half higher than usual, will be a big river.

Subsidiary of the water works is of the opinion that the water will reach at least 50 feet before it begins to fall.

The stage of the water at noon Thurs day was 40 feet 3 inches and rising two inches an hour. The water line was reached during the evening.

Twin Rivers East.

MARSHALL, Ill., April 22.—Two men, Fred Dickerson and Tom Davis, were found guilty in Judge Weller's Wednesday trial of the murder of Mrs. John, a Jew, at Richland. They were sentenced to be hung Saturday.

HOOSIER DEMOCRATS

Meet and Nominate a Full Ticket—Democrats Governor and Lt. Gov., State Treasurer and Governor. The Platform Endorses Cleveland's Administration and Favors Gray as a Candidate for President.

LAWRENCE, Ind., April 22.—The universal comment since Thursday's democratic convention was that it passed with less friction than was anticipated by even the most hopeful peace advocate, considering the sharp antagonism and widely divergent interests which characterized the preliminary skirmish.

The following ticket was nominated:

For governor, Claude Matthews; lieutenant-governor, Mortimer Nye; secretary of state, Wm. R. Meyers; auditor, John Ossian Johnson; state treasurer, Almon Green; attorney general, Alonso Green Smith; reporter supreme court, Sidney R. Moon; superintendent of public instruction, Harvey R. Vorles; state judge, William A. Peeler; state judges, first district, James McCalley; fifth district, Timothy E. Howard; judges of appellate court, first district, George L. Reinhardt; second district, Francis E. Gaynor; third district, Theodore P. Davis; fourth district, O. J. Lotz; fifth district, G. E. Moore.

Senator Turp was the chairman of the convention. Senator Voeches, Hugh Dougherty, Chas. L. Jewell and Samuel E. Morris were elected delegates-at-large to the national convention.

The ballot was sufficient to nominate Matthews and Nye.

There was a war of words and shouts between the Shamborn and Nye men, and Nye made a good fight.

A spirited contest between the Cleveland and Gray factions took place, which ended in Gray capturing the bulk of the delegation to the national convention.

The platform, although the adhesion of Benjamin Harrison "for its subservience to the interests of the money power, which created it, and indifference to the welfare of the people; for its brazen violation of its solemn pledges to the country, to democracy and to the principles which it espoused," was rejected.

It favors such measures of tariff reform as shall relieve the necessities of the people; condemns the so-called reciprocity treaty, believes in constant circulation of sufficient volume of money—gold, silver and legal tender paper currency—and with each other; the election of United States senators directly by the people.

It closes with the endorsement of Cleveland and Gray.

"Resolved, That this convention inscribes its hearty endorsement of Grover Cleveland, and that the presidential campaign of 1888 should be conducted on the issue of tariff reform as presented in the presidential message of 1887; that, upon this issue, Mr. Cleveland is the logical candidate of the democratic party."

The platform also states that the Democratic party of Indiana expresses its unalterable confidence in and attachment to its gallant leader, Gen. P. Gray; that it holds him to be worthy of any honor in the gift of the American people, and that he has done more to benefit the cause of the nation than any man in this country.

They have no objection to the delegation this day appointed; and in the event that the National convention deems the nomination of Mr. Cleveland inexpedient, the delegation is instructed to use every honorable effort to secure the nomination of Gov. T. S. Gray for the presidency.

OUR DAILY MAIL

The Old Bay Again.

The City Marshal of Higginsville looked up to trap for vagrancy. Later in the morning he was discovered in his cell, and at noon he was sent to the excise officer, but for the timely arrival of the engine watchman the Town Hall would have been consumed. The man claimed to belong to the George H. Thomas Post, G. A. R., Cincinnati, and wanted to go to Indiana. He said if he was put across the river he could steal his way on the train, which was done in a hurry. That's the same old "bum" that was here a few days ago. He no more belongs to Thomas Post—or any other Post—than he does to the household of Queen Victoria.

Just Fifty Years Ago.

Another paper makes mention of a copy of the Mayaville Eagle of date May 15, 1844. Pawah, that's nothing; we have one before us, dated March 5, 1842, printed by Lewis Collins. The Mayaville merchants appear to have been in those days more liberal with their advertising favors than now; but in the well-filled columns of the paper there is the name of but a single advertiser who lives now in Mayaville, and but two who live elsewhere in all this busy world. The first is Captain Newton Cooper, still hale and hearty, and the others are Daniel Spalding of Louisville and Henry Waller of Chicago.

Played the Deuce at Danville.

At Danville during a violent storm, lightning struck the large brick sanatorium owned by Dr. A. W. Johnstone and Dr. Reamy. The massive stone steps in front were displaced as easily as if they had been as light as feathers, and a deep hole was torn in the earth beneath them. Leaving the steps, the lightning reappeared in a bathroom on the first floor, and fully fifty feet to the rest of the steps. It then entirely demolished what remained of the walls, columns, and wrenching one of the handles from a framework over it, but left no further marks of its visit in the room. Dr. Johnstone's mother and sisters were in the building, as well as several other persons, but none of them were injured or incommoded, save by severe shocks.

An Ex-Mayor in Jail.

B. P. Higgins, ex-Mayor of Somersett, is in jail, having been surrendered by his bondsmen. His trial was postponed until next Monday, as he claimed he could not get his witnesses here from Chattanooga. He could not give bond again, and was sent to jail.

The Grand Jury returned two indictments against him, one for robbing and the other for unlawfully detaining Miss Finette Woods in January last. The young lady is yet in the Lexington Insane Asylum, where she has been ever since the attack made upon her by Higgins. The feeling against him is intense, but it is believed that no violence will be attempted by the people, and it is generally believed he will be sent to the Penitentiary for a term of years.

Credit Court.

Refused to be His Own Grandfather.

William H. Hartman, resident of Titusville, committed suicide a few days ago from a melancholy conviction that he was his own grandfather. Here is the singular letter he left: "I married a widow with a grown-up daughter. My father visited our house very often, fell in love with my step-daughter and married her. So my father became my son-in-law, and my stepdaughter my mother, because she was my father's wife. Some time afterwards my wife had a son; he was my father's brother-in-law and my uncle, for he was the brother of my stepmother. My father's wife, i.e. my stepdaughter, had also a son; he was, of course, my brother, and in the meantime my grandfather, because she was the son of my daughter. My wife was my grandmother, because she was my mother's mother. Now my wife's husband and grandchild at the same time. And as the husband of a person's grandmother is his grandfather, I was my own grandfather."

One of the most disastrous floods people in the Ohio valley have experienced in many years, occurred in August. February is looked upon as the most dangerous month. This year April may distinguish TRAIN on the C. & O. are running on time again.

The river has risen about four feet in the last twenty-four hours and is rising slowly this morning.

If A. B. C., who advertised in the "Lost" column for "a tress of brown hair," will offer a suitable reward, the same will be forthcoming.

Jes Kinder, a horse dealer of York, Pa., is in the county. He purchased a fine animal from W. R. Gill of Washington yesterday.

D. Hunt & Son are offering great bargains in Carpets, Lace Curtains and Window Shades. Don't fail seeing these goods before purchase, as we will certainly save money by doing so.
